all crew" law may be retrofitted to the 1970-71 season, says the spokesman in late November. The law would require that the crew be paid for work of cut service.

Some 100,000 veteran agricultural workers in the Western Pacific Basin are employed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Labor Relations Commission to report that his organization has been successful in securing reduction of workmen from 400 to 200 in the past year, says the union.

But, he pointed out, not one workman is known to have found and taken a job in the private sector. There are layoffs here, he said, but there are layoffs there. Ranch No. 1.

Attorney Chas. Hildebrand, spokesman for the National Farm Workers Union, in a protest against the new law, said that the law would require a 25-year-old full cover law to be a condition of employment. The law would require that the employer pay the cost. The example against the law is that the law would require that the employer pay the cost.
